Body Armour Fitting Form. It will be more accurate if an assistant measures you

This page is for one person's body armour. If your order is for several items of body armour, you will need additional "fitting forms". Clicking on the above "grey bar" will open a copy from our website. You can save and E-mail duplicates of the "fitting form" to any individuals requiring a copy.

We will use your "Order Ref." from page 1 of this order form to match any extra "fitting forms" to your order.

Your Chest / Bust. This is the "breathe-in" maximum measurement whilst wearing your typical duty or work clothing.

Chest / Bust - Breathe in

Belly whilst Standing

Belly whilst Seated

Your belly. Take this measurement whilst standing and seated. The standing measurement is a relaxed posture, i.e. not slouched. When seated we need the biggest measurement. Your belly is not your trouser or waist size.

Your sternum to the top edge of your duty trousers measurement. The Sternum is the point where the collar bones meet - just below the Adam's Apple. It is also the point where the bottom of a tie knot usually rests. The seated measurement will measure less than the standing.

Nape (Where the neck meets the back) to the top edge of your duty or work trousers. The nape is the highest protruding backbone found a little lower than the hairline. This bone can be found better by tilting your head backwards and forwards. Do not tilt your head forwards whilst your assistant takes this measurement. The picture shows the approximate position using a tie.
